The Endocrine Pathology Society invites nominations for the Hubert Wolfe Award for 2021. This award, established in memory of Dr. Hubert Wolfe, is awarded annually at the discretion of the Endocrine Pathology Society to honor an outstanding original research paper in the field of endocrine pathology published during the previous calendar year by a pathologist in training. The award and accompanying prize will be awarded at the Endocrine Pathology Society's annual meeting in March 2022.

Nominations should be sent to the Wolfe award committee.
