

Notice

© Springer Japan 2015

An ethical violation was discovered in the submission of an article in the Clinical Journal of Gastroenterology after its Online First publication. One of the article's authors was found to have forged a signature on the submitted certification form. The Editorial Board takes this matter very seriously and has therefore imposed probationary measures against the corresponding author.

All authors are required to provide proper certification forms and to maintain high ethical standard in the preparation and submission of articles.

Tetsuji Takayama
Editor-in-Chief