TOUCHING BUT WITH THE EYES ONLY! THE EFFECTIVENESS OF TEXTURED PACKAGING AND THE MODERATING EFFECT OF PREVIOUS TACTILE STIMULATION

Bruno Ferreira, Clermont University, France
Sonia Capelli, Clermont University, France
Olivier Trendel, Grenoble Ecole de Management, France

ABSTRACT

This study analyses the effectiveness of textured packaging and the moderating roles of tactile stimulation and an individual level variable, the NFT instrumental dimension. We show that touching a first product can fulfill the need for touch and potentially decrease or suppress the visual effect of texture of subsequent products.