- NIE, N. H., C. H. HULL, J. G. JENKINS, K. STEINBRENNER, and D. H. BENT (1975) Statistical Package for the Social Sciences. New York: McGraw-Hill.
- RAMEY, J. W. (1975) "Intimate groups and networks: frequent consequence of sexually open marriage." Family Coordinator 4: 515-530.
- SHAW, M. E. (1971) Group Dynamics: the Psychology of Small Group Behavior. New York: McGraw-Hill.
- SMITH, J. R. and L. S. SMITH [eds.] (1974) Beyond Monogamy: Recent Studies of Sexual Alternatives in Marriage. London: John Hopkins Univ. Press.

Bram Buunk finished his studies in social psychology at the State University of Groningen, the Netherlands, in 1971. During his study he did research in homosexuality and became interested in alternative lifestyles. Although he conducted research projects on attitudes toward environmental matters and youth facilities, his main research was and is still in the field of intimacy. He published a number of papers and two books on topics such as jealousy, premarital sex, extramarital sex, and marital choice. He is currently finishing a book on the sexually open marriage. He is presently a staff member of the social psychology department of the Catholic University in Nijmegen, the Netherlands.

ERRATUM

An unfortunate error occurred as a result of dropped copy in the article by Sharon M. Raphael and Mina K. Robinson (Volume 3, Number 2, May 1980), "The Older Lesbian: Love Relationships and Friendship Patterns."

On page 225, the second full paragraph should read as follows: "To be assigned to the moderate self-esteem category, the respondent must have used words and phrases commonly understood to express both positive and negative values. An example of this is 'I guess I'm no worse than anybody else except for my weight. But at least I know myself pretty well.'"

The next paragraph should read: "To be assigned to the weak self-esteem category, the respondent must have primarily used words and phrases commonly understood to express negative values. An example of this is 'If I was to see me walking down the street, I wouldn't bother turning my head.'"