Erratum

Readers should note that a line of text was inadvertently omitted from the printed issue in the article by Ramon J. Rhine, Guy W. Norton, Gail M. Wynn, and Roger D. Wynn that appeared in Vol. 10, No. 4, August 1989 of the International Journal of Primatology, "Plant Feeding of Yellow Baboons (Papio cynocephalus) in Mikumi National Park, Tanzania, and the Relationship Between Seasonal Feeding and Immature Survival."

The omitted line, which should have printed immediately below line 8 in the second paragraph on p. 322 of the article, is the following:

favorable feeding time of December and January, were predicted to have Accordingly, the sentence which begins on line 7 of the same paragraph should, in its entirety, read as follows:

Assuming that infant plant feeding is extensive by about the sixth month of life, infants born in June and July, 6 months before the favorable feeding time of December and January, were predicted to have the highest survival rate.