produce increased secretion to the skin. Cupping, bleeding, leeching, calomel, antimony, were in each case contra-indicated by the feeble pulse, the anxious countenance, the scurvy gums, and diarrhœa. Cough, when it existed, was relieved by henbane, hemlock, and even paregoric.

(To be continued.)

ART. XX.—On the Natural Constants of the Healthy Urine in Man. By the REV. SAMUEL HAUGHTON, F.R.S., Fellow of Trinity College, Dublin.

[WE publish the following Table, in anticipation of Mr. Haughton's paper on the "Natural Constants of the Healthy Urine in Man," the first part of which will appear in our next Number.—ED.]

TABLE derived from Experiment, showing the relation between the Specific Gravity of Healthy Urine, and the Quantity of Urea contained in it.

Specific Gravity of Urine.	Grains of Urea per oz. of Urine.	Specific Gravity of Urine.	Grains of Urea per oz. of Urine.
1010·0	. . .	1020·0	12·2
1010·5	. . .	1020·5	12·4
1011·0	. . .	1021·0	12·6
1011·5	. . .	1021·5	12·9
1012·0	. . .	1022·0	13·1
1012·5	5·0	1022·5	13·3
1013·0	5·7	1023·0	13·4
1013·5	6·6	1023·5	13·5
1014·0	7·2	1024·0	13·7
1014·5	7·8	1024·5	13·8
1015·0	8·4	1025·0	13·9
1015·5	8·8	1025·5	13·95
1016·0	9·2	1026·0	14·0
1016·5	9·6	1026·5	14·0
1017·0	10·0	1027·0	14·0
1017·5	10·4	1027·5	14·0
1018·0	10·9	1028·0	14·0
1018·5	11·2	1028·5	13·95
1019·0	11·5	1029·0	13·9
1019·5	11·9	1029·5	. . .