NOTICES TO CORRESPONDENTS.

The Editors beg to observe, with reference to the discussion between Mr. Faussett and the Editor of the Medico-Chirurgical Review, that they do not hold themselves accountable for the doctrines or expressions in any paper bearing the name of the author, which may appear in the Dublin Journal.—Dr. Johnson will perceive that the article in question is not an editorial one.

Dr. Johnson's able and dignified Reply shall be republished in our next Number.

It may be satisfactory to state, that Mr. Carmichael, while reading his paper on Neuralgic Diseases at the College of Physicians, produced the enlarged and scirrhous Casserian ganglion, alluded to at p. 299, as well as several other tumours of nerves.

Doctor Bulard (de Mèru) on the Plague, will appear in our next Number, arranged and digested by Doctor Bigger.
