Every year since 2003, the editorial board has chosen publications from the previous volume for nomination of the Editors' medal. The winners are selected by a poll among all members of the editorial board and include original and experimental submissions only.

In response to the continued increase in reader interest and author submissions, the editors decided this year to again honor two author groups for their outstanding contributions to CVIR.

This year it is our pleasure to give the Editors' Medal 2010 to Dr. Bilbao and his group from Spain, and to Dr. Pech and his group from Germany. This award comes with a considerable donation from our publisher, Springer Inc. New York. Congratulations!
