The Editors-in-Chief retract the above-mentioned article per the Committee on Publication Ethics (COPE) guidelines on redundant publication.

The editors have examined and discussed this case of redundant publication and followed the guidelines from the Committee on Publication Ethics (COPE) to address this issue. The overlap between the above-mentioned article and International Journal of Cardiology 199 (2015)

426–428 was deemed substantial, and the editors decided that the publication of two separate articles of this study is redundant and unnecessary.

The Editors-in-Chief take issues of research and publication misconduct seriously in order to preserve the integrity of the academic record.

The online version of this article contains the full text of the retracted article as electronic supplementary material.
