It has come to Springer's attention that two paragraphs in the paper Soil salinization in the agricultural lands of Rhodope District, northeastern Greece, by Vassilios Pisinaras, Vassilios A. Tsihrintzis, Christos Petalas, Konstantinos Ouzounis (DOI 10.1007/s10661-009-0986-6) published in Environmental Monitoring and Assessment (EMAS), were copied virtually intact from the paper The agricultural impacts of irrigation induced waterlogging and soil salinity in the Arkansas Basin, by Houk et al., J of Agricultural Water Management 85:175–183. While the two papers are totally different in concept and the EMAS authors had cited the Arkansas paper at the beginning of these paragraphs, they admit there was an oversight in the way they identified these two paragraphs. They should have used italics and quotes, or even totally omitted the two paragraphs. The authors of the paper in EMAS wish to sincerely apologize for this mistake.
