Continuing a decade-long trend, Journal submissions have increased steadily, year by year, from 740 in 2007 to 1064 last year. Of the papers received by JADD during 2017, about 35% were ultimately accepted after one or more revisions. Because e-publication following acceptance is rapid, every submission is first reviewed by Journal staff to ensure that it is formatted and referenced correctly. JADD's editorial team emphasizes that it is critical to follow author guidelines and carefully proofread all content before submission. In about one-third of cases, authors are asked to make formatting corrections before review to ensure the speediest publication once an article is accepted.

In response to its burgeoning paper flow, JADD continues to expand its editorial board and would like to extend a warm welcome to its newest Associate Editor, Giacomo Vivanti. Even as submissions continue to increase annually, the Journal still strives to achieve an efficient turnaround time. Once a paper has cleared the initial internal review for adherence to Journal style, the average time from first submission to initial decision averages 46 days. This relatively fast turnaround time reflects the diligence of everyone who contributes to the peer-review process. Occasionally, papers that focus on a complex or abstruse topic may take longer to review, and—in these rare cases—the Journal appreciates authors' patience in awaiting feedback.

Currently, the Journal's rejection rate is about 65%. To conserve valuable Journal space, authors are encouraged to publish content that may reasonably be included in online appendices only as "Extra Supplementary Materials" (ESM). As noted in previous editorials, JADD typically does not accept review papers, though occasional exceptions are made for those that make significant contributions to the field. In general, review papers are referred to Springer's companion journal, the Review Journal of Autism and Developmental Disorders. In addition, JADD accepts case report submissions only in the form of letters to the editor; case studies (i.e., preintervention or postintervention) may be submitted as standard "original research" papers.

Whenever possible, the Journal encourages use of special sections to group papers on related topics. During the past year, JADD published a special section on anxiety disorders and autism; in 2018, several special sections/issues are planned, including one on college students with ASD and another on parenting children with ASD. Of course, all papers submitted to special sections/issues are subject to the same double-blinded peer-review process.

One of the gratifying trends during the past several years has been the increase in submissions from a broader range of countries. Last year, JADD received submissions from 65 countries. This trend reflects growing interest in, and awareness of, autism in the world at large.

The Journal is grateful to the production staff at Springer for helping us move articles through the publication process so that now articles, once accepted, are published Online First in relatively short order (typically < 2 weeks). Thanks also to Judy Jones at Springer and the individuals involved in the production of the Journal, including Michelle Tam, Santhoshini Sivakumar, and Janani Ganesan.

As always, the Editor and team are deeply grateful to the Associate Editors: Alice Carter, Ph.D., Joshua Diehl, Ph.D., Christopher McDougale, Ph.D., Carla Mazefsky, Ph.D., Iain McClure, MBBS, FRCPsych, FRCPCH, James McPartland, Ph.D., Nancy Minshew, M.D.; Brian Reichow, Ph.D., and Jeremy M. Veenstra-Vanderweele, M.D., Susan White, Ph.D., and the newest Associate Editor, Giacomo Vivanti, Ph.D. Each has generously and diligently supported the work of the Journal, even in the face of the growing number of submissions. In the Journal office, Lori Klein, Editorial Manager, and Logan Hart, Editorial Assistant, work diligently to ensure that every submission conforms to Journal standards before it enters peer review, thereby streamlining the process for the Editor and Associate Editors.

JADD welcomes the following new members to the editorial board: Laurent Mottron, M.D., Ph.D.; Laci Watkins, Ph.D.; and Antonio Hardan, M.D. In addition, the Journal team acknowledges the “Top 10” reviewers (i.e., those individuals who provided the greatest number of comprehensive, thorough, timely reviews) for 2017: Roald Øien, Giacomo Vivanti, Scott Jackson, Kenneth Larsen, Anders Nordahl-Hansen, David Beversdorf, Kenneth Aiken, Tristram Smith, Johnny Matson, and Amy Accardo. As a gesture of the Journal’s appreciation for their extraordinary service, Springer will provide each with a complimentary eBook.

Listed below are the names of the individuals who have contributed one or more reviews to the Journal this year. Although far from perfect, peer review is the most effective way for the field to ensure the quality of the scholarly product. JADD thanks these individuals for their hard work and dedication.
