From the editor

In September 2007, the European Society for Agricultural and Food Ethics (EurSAFE) organized its 7th conference, entitled “Sustainable Food Production and Ethics.” It was held in Vienna, Austria. The current issue features papers selected from the conference. The papers were selected because they address the issue of sustainable food production as an interdisciplinary question. The guest editors are the former secretary of EurSAFE (Frans Brom finished his term during the 2007 conference) and his successor (Franck Meijboom was elected during the conference). The papers were submitted to the journal editor and put through the normal review process. Then the guest editors wrote a guest editorial giving a brief overview of each of the papers. The authors are Raymond Anthony, Unni Kjaernes, Clemens Driessen, Tom MacMillan and Elizabeth Dowler, Dirk Roep and Johannes S. C. Wiskerke, and Kristian Høyer Toft. The theme of the special issue is “Ethics and Sustainability: Guest or Guide? On Sustainability as a Moral Guide.”

The current issue also has four book reviews.
