Dear colleagues:

Volume 87, the third volume in 2017 is completed with the publication of this double issue. We have tried, as before, to include as many papers as possible in each issue, in an attempt to reduce the queue of accepted papers. Although papers appear online first, we feel it is equally important to appear in a specific issue; this is the least we can do for the authors. Along those lines we are scheduling 'bigger' issues for October – December, which will include combinations of contributed and Special Issue papers.

As always, we welcome your comments and feedback about JINT. WE look forward to serving you and assisting you in any way possible.

Enjoy the issue.
