Foreword

Yugang Chen · Giorgio Dominese

Published online: 24 November 2012
© CEEUN 2012

Global governance is a challenge of our era and us as human beings no matter where we live and what values we believe in. After a 100 years of development, international relations are so closely and tightly netted. A problem in a community might affect the life of the people in a remote community, and its solution might also be in the hands of these people. Whether we can manage this complex of various relations matters for our life and common future. It is the time for us to invest our wisdom and energy to make global governance work now.

There is no simple way and framework for global governance. Global governance is a general term which means to think globally and act globally. It is complicated because problems might be local. It is complicated because problems might be also global. It is complicated because the solution of problems might be local. It is complicated because the solution of problems might be also global. That's why we need to check issues case by case carefully. We need to sort out what solution is the best choice for the problem. We need to identify who should be the person to take action.

Global issues are definitely the subjects of global governance. Meanwhile, global governance takes care of issues with local reasons and local solution because we believe the experience might be helpful for people living in other parts of the world. Research and advanced knowledge must be the first line of this challenge, where also our Journal Global Policy and Governance intends to contribute opening its pages, issue after issue, to faculty, experts, testimonies, articles and relevant review of books, junior researchers' works. We intend to embrace and reach all the possible interested colleagues and fellows around the world, as choices and strategies in all

Y. Chen (✉)
Fudan University, Shanghai, China
e-mail: ygchen@fudan.edu.cn

G. Dominese
Transition Studies Network, Rome, Venice
e-mail: Giorgio.Dominese@ceeun.org

the sectors involving public and private governance, nobody excluded, are under questioning and innovative evaluation. To add also our contribution is really our aim and scope.

Here you find the appointed Editorial leadership:

Editor-in-Chief: Giorgio Dominese, President Transition Studies Network—CEEUN, Tor Vergata Rome University, LUISS University Rome and European Academy of Sciences and Arts, Salzburg; g.dominese@transitionstudiesnetwork.org.

Co-Editors-in-Chief: Yugang Chen, Head Center for Global Governance, Fudan University, Shanghai, Laris Gaiser, President (acting) EMUNI-Euro Mediterranean University, Portorož, Slovenia. Managing Editor: Tran Dinh Lam, Director Center for Vietnamese and Southeast Asian Studies, Vietnam National University, Ho Chi Minh City.