Welcome to the first issue of Medical Science Educator of 2017. This issue features a number of new manuscripts reporting on medical education, which I hope will be of interest to you.

The editorial board is very pleased with the progress of the journal in 2016. In the end, Medical Science Educator received 197 new submissions originating from 25 countries. In volume 26, a total number of 150 articles have been published in almost 900 pages. Overall, the 2016 rejection rate of the journal ended up at 35%.

The board is happy to see that so many educators find their way to Medical Science Educator to present their scholarly work. I hereby invite educators from medical, nursing, dental, and veterinary schools to share their experiences in health science education with us. The goal of Medical Science Educator is to publish quality papers from an international authorship that are of interest to all who teach the sciences in healthcare. I therefore hope you will enjoy this issue and that you will continue supporting Medical Science Educator both as a reader and as an author of your own scholarly work for the benefit of our work and the work of others!
