

Werner Knapp 65

Prof. Dr. Werner Knapp (permission of Selecta)

Prof. Dr. Werner Knapp, a member of our Editorial Board, celebrated his 65th birthday on the 9th September 1981. He not only contributed decisively to research on Yersinia infections; he was also one of the first to draw the clinicians' attention to the full extent of this species of organisms. Today he is still an expert and a leader in this field. Due to his vast knowledge in the fields of clinical microbiology and hospital hygiene, he is a highly esteemed advisor for all those who have ever worked with him. We should like to wish him all the best and many years of fruitful work in the future.

Sidney M. Finegold 60

Prof. Sidney M. Finegold (permission of Selecta)

Prof. Sidney M. Finegold, MD a member of our Editorial Board, celebrated his 60th birthday on the 12th August 1981. It is almost superfluous – even in Europe – to comment on the tireless and resolute work of one of the most well-known infectiologists in the field of anaerobics. As most readers are aware, he played an important part in explaining the significance of anaerobes in many infections and in investigating the therapeutic possibilities in the treatment of anaerobic infections. May we offer our colleague all good wishes both for his jubilee year and for the continuation of his excellent activities.
