R. M. Bannatyne, M. A. Karmali, J. Jackowski, M. Roscoe: Susceptibility of Campylobacter Species to Niridazole (Volume 5, Number 6, 1986, p. 664–665):

The last two sentences on page 665 should read as follows: "The association of Campylobacter pyloridis with acid peptic disease of the stomach and duodenum is now well confirmed (11) and studies addressing the effects of interventions with different anti-campylobacter agents are to be expected. As with the enteric strains the place of niridazole, even if effective in this situation, will be determined in relation to its adverse effects."
