33rd International Geological Congress (IGC 33). "Earth System Science: Foundation for Sustainable Development" is a collaboration with the International Union of Geological Sciences (IUGS) and many other international and national organisations, the National IUGS Committees in the five Nordic Countries. It will span the whole field of Earth science, binding together classical geology with geophysics, geochemistry, and the biogeosciences. Main themes include: human influence on the Earth system; managing a changing planet, and geological resources for the 21st Century and their environmental challenge. Special symposia focus on two main subjects: Norden (the Nordic countries) and the Arctic and Bipolar relationships. General symposia will cover all the individual disciplines of the Earth sciences. A very wide range of scientific publications are envisaged as part of IGC33. Excursions from July 26 to August 21 2008 will cover a wide region (Greenland, the Faroes, Svalbard, Western Russia, UK, Norway, Sweden, Finland, Iceland, and Denmark). Publishing International Events

Each month the events section of Environmental Geology reveals a wide array of relevant international geoscience meetings, conferences, workshops and short courses—all focusing on environmental geology themes. If there is an upcoming event that has not yet appeared in our calendar or that is in the planning stage, we would certainly like to hear about it well in advance. Scientists and professionals may easily announce their planned events free
