Dr. Liane Feldman MD CM FACS FRCS is the Edward W. Archibald Professor and Chair of the Department of Surgery at McGill University in Montreal Canada and Surgeon-in-chief at the McGill University Health Centre.

Dr. Feldman's clinical focus is minimally invasive gastrointestinal surgery. She previously held the Steinberg-Bernstein Chair in minimally invasive surgery and was the fellowship program director for over a decade. Her patient-centered clinical research program focuses on improving patient recovery and other outcomes of abdominal surgery. This includes measurement of patient-centered outcomes during surgical recovery; assessment of operative performance; and organization of perioperative care processes through the use of enhanced recovery programs. She was a James IV Travelling Surgeon for Canada and received the Canadian Association for Medical Education National Award. She is a member of the executive council of the Society of American Gastrointestinal and Endoscopic Surgeons (SAGES) where she will serve as President in 2021–2022.

“Fun facts”: She loves to cook, travel, ski and spend time at the lake with her family.
