In the first paragraph of the Results section, a percentage and description was reported incorrectly (corrections are shown in bold below):

Of the full sample, 37.6% of the women reported at least one lifetime victimization incident based on physical assault, sexual assault, stalking, threatened violence, and kidnapping. In childhood, 25.6% reported at least one victimization experience, while 26.6% reported at least one victimization experience in adulthood. For the victimized women, 66.9% of them experienced more than one victimization incident, with an average of almost three (2.93) victimization incidents.
