In this regard, we draw on experiences from (1) design science in information systems research (Simon 1996 [1969]; Hevner et al. 2004); (2) computer-supported business games and simulations (Meier et al. 1969; March and Smith 1995; Sutcliffe 2002); and (3) a specific entrepreneurial framework with its financial and microeconomic aspects (Giulioni et al. 2012, 2013, and 2017) closely connected to the works of Myers and Majluf (1984) and of Koeva (2009) among others.
