

Correction to: A Call for Hope-Centered Work: A Preliminary Study of Oncology Social Workers' Perceptions of the Role and Value of Hope at End-of-Life

Meredith Hemphill Ruden^{1,2,3}

Published online: 8 July 2019

© Springer Science+Business Media, LLC, part of Springer Nature 2019

Correction to: Clinical Social Work Journal
<https://doi.org/10.1007/s10615-019-00715-1>

The original version of the article unfortunately contained an error in a couple of sentences. In ‘Personal Views and Experiences’ section, percentage value ‘98’ is missing in the sentence ‘Nearly all of participants (* %) said that they thought of solutions to reach their hoped-for goals, agreeing or strongly agreeing with the statement: “When I have faced difficulties that couldn’t be solved right then, I thought of solution for the future.” and it should read as below.

Nearly all of participants (98%) said that they thought of solutions to reach their hoped-for goals, agreeing or strongly agreeing with the statement: “When I have faced difficulties that couldn’t be solved right then, I thought of solution for the future.”

In ‘Hope in Personal Beliefs and Values’ section, ‘Positive Outlook’ subsection, the sentence ‘Some participants thought of hopefulness as part of a positive outlook.’ should read ‘Some participants thought of hopefulness as part of a positive outlook’.

Publisher’s Note Springer Nature remains neutral with regard to jurisdictional claims in published maps and institutional affiliations.

The original article can be found online at <https://doi.org/10.1007/s10615-019-00715-1>.

✉ Meredith Hemphill Ruden
meredithruden@gmail.com

¹ The Feather Foundation, Maplewood, USA

² New York University, New York, USA

³ Maplewood, USA