Author Spotlight: Yasmin G. Hernandez-Barco

Yasmin G. Hernandez-Barco¹

Published online: 13 July 2020

© Springer Science+Business Media, LLC, part of Springer Nature 2020

Dr. Yasmin G. Hernandez-Barco is an incoming Instructor of Medicine at the Massachusetts General Hospital (MGH) and Harvard School of Medicine. She is a physician-scientist and studies the immunobiology of pancreatic cancer precursor lesions and the role of the immune system in malignant progression of pancreatic cancer. She is due to complete her Advanced Medical Pancreatology Fellowship at MGH and Brigham and Women's Hospital in June 2020. Dr. Hernandez-Barco concluded her Gastroenterology and Hepatology Fellowship in the Division of Gastroenterology at MGH in 2019 and is expected to complete her postdoctoral training in the MGH Cancer Center as a Research Fellow at the Harvard School of Medicine and Broad Institute of Massachusetts Institute of Technology and Harvard in 2021. She completed her residency and chief residency at the Icahn School of Medicine at Mount Sinai. She was awarded her medical degree from SUNY Stony Brook School of Medicine where she was inducted into the Alpha Omega Alpha and Gold Humanism Honors Societies. She looks forward to continuing a career in academic gastroenterology and serving as the Gastroenterology Division's Medical Pancreatologist in the fall.

Publisher's Note Springer Nature remains neutral with regard to jurisdictional claims in published maps and institutional affiliations.

✉ Yasmin G. Hernandez-Barco
yhernandez-barco@mgh.harvard.edu

¹ Division of Gastroenterology, Massachusetts General Hospital, Harvard Medical School, Boston, MA, USA