Correction to: Fifteen-Year Prospective Follow-Up Study of Adult Outcomes of Autism Spectrum Disorders Among Children Attending Centers in Five Regional Departments in France: The EpiTED Cohort

Amaria Baghdadli^{1,2,3,4} · Cécile Rattaz² · Cécile Michelon² · Eric Pernon² · Kerim Munir⁵

Published online: 14 March 2019

© Springer Science+Business Media, LLC, part of Springer Nature 2019

Correction to:

Journal of Autism and Developmental Disorders
<https://doi.org/10.1007/s10803-019-03901-9>

The original version of this article unfortunately contained the following omissions.

The original citations after the titles of the figures and tables are given below:

Fig. 1 Flow chart of the EpiTED cohort (Rattaz et al. 2017)

Table 1 Comparison of characteristics at T1 between the patients who remained in the cohort and those lost to follow-up (Baghdadli et al. Autism Research 2018, supporting information, included in reference list)

Table 3 Characteristics of participants still followed at T4 at each time of follow-up according to diagnosis status (Baghdadli et al. 2018)

Fig. 2 Trajectories of adaptive level through adulthood among 94 participants of the EpiTED cohort diagnosed as children (Baghdadli et al. 2018)

In the results, the paragraph on: “Parental Quality of Life”

“The impact of ASD on parental Quality of Life (QoL) during adolescence and adulthood was examined using Par-DD-QoL (Baghdadli et al. 2014; Rattaz et al. 2017).”

In the acknowledgments:

“We wish to sincerely thank the participants and their families for their valuable and long-lasting collaboration and their confidence in our study. We also extend our thanks to the research teams for their support during the past 15 years. A special thought to Florine Dellapiazza and to Colette Boy for their help with the literature review.”

Instead should say:

“We wish to sincerely thank the participants and their families for their valuable and long-lasting collaboration and their confidence in our study. We also extend our thanks to the research teams for their support during the past 15 years. A special thanks to Laurent Mottron, Marie-Christine Picot, and Herbert Roeyers, for their specific help with interpretation of results, careful reading and suggestions on previous EpiTED papers. We also acknowledge Florine Dellapiazza and Colette Boy for their assistance with the literature review.”

The original article can be found online at <https://doi.org/10.1007/s10803-019-03901-9>.

✉ Amaria Baghdadli
rech-clinique-autisme@chu-montpellier.fr

¹ Département de Psychiatrie, Centre Universitaire Hospitalier (CHU) de Montpellier, 34000 Montpellier, France

² Centre de Ressources Autisme Languedoc-Roussillon, CHU Montpellier, 39 Avenue Charles Flahaut, 34295 Montpellier, France

³ Centre de Recherche en Épidémiologie et Santé des Populations, U1178, INSERM, Paris, France

⁴ Ecole de Médecine, Université de Montpellier, Montpellier, France

⁵ Developmental Medicine Center, Boston Children’s Hospital, Harvard Medical School, Boston, MA, USA

Reference

Rattaz, C., Michelon, C., Roeyers, H., & Baghdadli, A. (2017). Quality of life in parents of young adults with ASD: EpiTED cohort. Journal of Autism and Developmental Disorders, 47(9), 2826–2837.

Publisher’s Note Springer Nature remains neutral with regard to jurisdictional claims in published maps and institutional affiliations.