Of course, any discussion of 2020 must begin with an acknowledgement of the impact of the COVID virus on all of us. It has disrupted and changed much of our clinical work and complicated the research process. We have lost valued colleagues, friends, and family members. The lock down has impacted both research and clinical work and disrupted schools and teaching. At the same time, and amidst all these changes, authors seemed to have more time to write therefore our number of submissions this past year, 1478, was a major increase from the year before (1147 in 2019). To put all these numbers in context, in my first year as Editor of the Journal in 2007 we had a grand total of 329 new submissions! This dramatic upsurge has been a tribute to the productiveness of the field even in the face of all the complexities and disruptions caused by the world-wide pandemic. Of the papers received last year only 1% were accepted after initial review, 12% were accepted after a first revision, and 18% after a 2nd or 3rd revision. About 60% of all papers were ultimately rejected after review with the remainder rejected without review or transferred to another Journal. We particularly appreciate the patience and persistence of reviewers who were often asked to review one or more manuscript revisions. While clearly not perfect our process of double blinded peer review does help us maintain a high standard for what we publish!

The associate editors and I were pleased to see the growth of scholarship on autism around the world; this past year authors from 72 countries submitted to the Journal. We are glad to see increased interest and scholarship in developing countries as well as those with more established research enterprises. With the increased number of submissions, we are increasingly aware of the problem of ‘reviewer fatigue,’ particularly in the age of COVID.

We remind authors that once a paper has been accepted the pace of electronic publication (complete with a doi) is very rapid, so it becomes even more important that submissions be in final form without error when they go out for review. While we routinely check format of papers for their adherence to Journal style we cannot, of course, be responsible for errors in content and for scholarship—hopefully (but not always) these are noted in review. We also remind authors that duplicate publication is not allowed, and authors certify this to us as part of the submission process along with ethical research conduct and so forth. Springer Nature is a member of COPE, the Committee on Publication Ethics, and the COPE guidelines are followed for all research integrity issues that come up in relation to JADD articles both under review and published. We continue to encourage authors to use the option of online publication of supplementary material as “Extra Supplementary Material” (ESM); this saves valuable Journal space while providing authors with the opportunity to give readers important ancillary material. We encourage special issues of topics of interest to our readership. This past year we have covered the following topic: Advancing our understanding of self-harm, suicidal thoughts and behaviors in autism. This year we have several special issues/sections in process including once celebrating then 40th anniversary of autism’s first official recognition in the DSM-III back in 1980.

The Journal continues to expand its editorial board and add Associate Editors as members rotate off. The Journal would like to extend a warm welcome to our newest Associate Editors Lynn Kern Koegel, Stanford University, School of Medicine, Palo Alto, CA, USA and Roald Øien, UiT-The Arctic University Tromsø, Norway.

We bid a fond farewell to the following members of the editorial board and thank them for their service: Nirit Baumiger-Zviely, Bar-Ilan University, Kevin Callahan, University of North Texas, Lee Marcus, University of North Carolina, and David Williams, University of Kent.

We welcome the following new members to the editorial board: Celine Saulnier, Emory University, Daniel Dunleavy, Florida State University, Guodong Liu, Pennsylvania State University College of Medicine, Kathy Kar-Man Shum, the University of Hong Kong, Kenneth Larson, Oslo

The Journal is deeply grateful for the continued dedication of the remaining Associate Editors: Alice S. Carter, Ph.D., Brian Reichow, Ph.D., Cara E. Pugliese, Ph.D., Carla Mazefsky, Ph.D., Christopher J. McDougale, M.D., Craig A. Erickson, M.D., Gerrit Ian Van Schalkwyk, M.D., Giacomo Vivanti, Ph.D., Hanna Stevens, M.D., Ph.D., James C. McPartland, Ph.D., Marc Woodbury-Smith, Ph.D., MRCPsychPatricia A. Prelock, Ph.D., and Shafali Spurling Jeste, M.D.

The associate editors, office staff and I also extend our very best wishes and many thanks Jennifer Hadley as Senior Editor and Soren Malpass, Editorial Assistant at Springer.

In the Journal office I wish to thank Lori Klein, Editorial Manager, and Monica Mleczek, Editorial Assistant, who not only work tirelessly with authors and reviewers to assist with the submission process, they also work diligently to ensure that every submission conforms to JADD standards before it enters peer review, thereby streamlining the process for the Editor and Associate Editors.

Having been privileged to serve as Editor of the Journal since 2007 I also wanted to take this opportunity to announce a change in leadership for the Journal. Beginning in July of this year Dr. Lynn Kern Koegel at Stanford University School of Medicine will become a senior associate editor handling more journal articles and assigning papers to associate editors. Beginning in January of 2022 she will become co-editor with me before I step down to become editor emeritus in 2023 handling any papers that I've been editing. We will search for scholars who can assist Lynn in 2023. To help ensure a smooth transition, the editorial staff of the Journal will remain highly unchanged for the next several years. I will have a chance to convey my many thanks to contributors, reviews, and associate editors over the next year or two and look forward to helping Lynn maintain the high standards of the Journal.

Listed in the following section are the names of the individuals who have contributed one or more reviews to the Journal this year. Although far from perfect, peer review remains the most effective way for the field to ensure the quality of the scholarly product. JADD thanks these individuals for their hard work and dedication.
