After the current issue, our editorial assistant, Carole Boster, will be retiring from the JCGL. Carole has been with the JCGL since 2005. She has edited and proofed (often several versions of) about 100 articles, and she has played a vital role behind the scenes, facilitating communication among authors, editors, and the production departments at Springer. Carole has provided unparalleled editorial and publishing assistance to our authors and the journal. Her patience and judiciousness have made working with Carole a true joy, and have been invaluable to the editors in shepherding articles through the (often complex) post-acceptance process. Her exceptional eye for linguistic writing, examples and formatting have significantly improved many of the articles published in the JCGL.

Thank you, Carole, for your 15 years of outstanding service to the JCGL!

Although we will miss Carole as part of the JCGL team, I am excited to welcome our new editorial assistant, Sarah Felber, who has started with this issue and who I look forward to working with.
