

Publisher's note

A protocol for patients with cardiovascular implantable devices undergoing magnetic resonance imaging (MRI): should defibrillation threshold testing be performed post-(MRI)

J. Rod Gimbel

© Springer Science+Business Media, LLC 2010

The Publisher regrets that the following Perspectives article, a commentary for the article “A protocol for patients with cardiovascular implantable devices undergoing magnetic resonance imaging (MRI): should defibrillation threshold testing be performed post-(MRI),” was not included in the June 2010 issue of the Journal of Interventional Cardiac Electrophysiology, Volume 28, No. 1.

This online version of the original article can be found under doi:10.1007/s10840-010-9480-x

J. R. Gimbel (✉)
9330 Parkwest Blvd., no. 202,
Knoxville, TN 37923, USA
e-mail: gimbeljr@ix.netcom.com