Dear Colleagues,

By now I assume you are comfortable with, and you like the new look of our journal. I personally feel that it offers a more professional, more serious, and authoritative look! However, only the 'look' has changed. Standards remain very high, I should say extremely high. I know that several authors are disappointed with the outcome of the review process, but there is nothing I can do about it. We all aim at publishing the highest quality papers, and we try to follow this objective as religiously as possible.

I would like to plea my case to you: make sure you submit high quality papers in which the novelties and uniqueness of your findings (or approach/methodology) are well presented and documented. This will make the reviewers' job easier. Judging a paper is already a time consuming task, so whatever we do as authors to assist reviewers is appreciated.

I am looking forward to receiving your work.

Enjoy the issue.
