Dear colleagues:

This double issue marks the completion of two Volumes in 2020. We have made progress in reducing the queue of accepted and to be published papers. The goal is to do better during the second half of 2020. We understand the importance of a timely publication. I have said several times that it will be optimal if the time from first submission to actual publication is about 8–9 months. We look at all parameters that may contribute to achieving such objective. However, as the number of contributed papers increases, we will need a larger database of potential reviewers. As such, I encourage all involved to populate the Editorial Manager with new reviewers who will be willing to be part of JINT.

I am looking forward to receiving your contributed papers. In the meantime, we hope you enjoy this double issue.
