Dear colleagues:

The double issue at hand includes a Special Issue component and contributed, regular papers. The Special Issue is named Robotica and the Guest Editors provide a detailed overview of its contents. The rest of this issue includes regular and short contributed papers.

As you have noticed, this double issue is ‘thicker’ than previous ones. There is a reason for this: We have tried to publish as many accepted papers as possible, with the aim to reduce the time from first submission to actual publication. We are making progress towards this goal.

We invite you to submit your research work to our journal; we will do our best to provide timely, objective, and informed reviews. We are here to serve you.

Enjoy the issue
