Dear Colleagues:

One third of 2022 is already gone! Time flies, indeed. With respect to our journal, thus far, we are on track for a record year; we receive and process more than 100 papers per month – we are well above 300 received papers and it is only the beginning of April.

We continue looking for different ways to minimize paper review delays; we have added new reviewers to the Editorial Manager, and we plan for a better geographical distribution of handling editors, adding new names. We will keep you always informed.

Moreover, we pay more attention to received articles. We go through an initial review to determine originality, novelty, and contributions. JINT always aims at publishing top quality articles – this benefits you, the authors.

We urge you to be more engaged; to be part of the JINT family from multiple vantage points, not just as authors. We welcome your feedback and comments, recommendations, and suggestions.

Enjoy the issue.
