The title of this Special Issue comes directly from a Special Workshop which took place at the XXVII World Congress of the IVR (at the Georgetown Law Center in Washington D.C. on July 2015). Some of the essays which compose this volume are extended or reviewed versions of the papers presented in Washington (published for the first time here). There is however a significant assortment of other materials, due to the enriching additions of new interlocutors. The publication of the Special Issue has been prepared within the framework of two different research projects: (a) a research grant financed by the National Science Centre (Poland), No. DEC-2015/19/B/HS5/03114 (Karolina M. Cern, Bartosz Wojciechowski) and (b) the Project “Societal Challenges, Uncertainty and Law: Plurality | Vulnerability | Undecidability” (University of Coimbra Institute for Legal Research (UCILeR), Coimbra, Project I&D, UID/DIR/04643/2019—a project financed by the Portuguese FCT-Fundação para a Ciência e a Tecnologia).
