A footnote for the title of Chapter 9 “An introductory cosmology for pedestrians” is added as follows:

Harry J. Lipkin has used the word “Pedestrians” in titles of some of his papers of the review nature. An Inspire search finds 15 articles. The first one appeared in 1964 and the last one in 2008. A number of other authors have also used the word in their articles, presumably in Lipkin’s approach. These include the present article, but in the title of a chapter.
