

Editor's Notes

By Abbie Brown

Welcome to the TechTrends "convention issue," which includes reports from a number of AECT divisions and committees (for more information on division and committee activities, see the AECT website: www.aect.org). The convention this past November in Jacksonville, Florida was by all accounts a wonderful experience for everyone who attended. Personally I could not have had a better conference experience; I learned a great deal, had a chance to socialize with colleagues, and make a number of new professional connections. AECT president Ana Donaldson provides a more complete report in this issue's President's Column.

Our upcoming convention in Louisville, Kentucky (October 21- November 3, 2012) promises to be a similar, wonderful experience. Marcus Childress and Zeni Colorado provide details about the upcoming meeting in this issue's Convention Update column.

Also in this issue, Kangdon Lee describes applications of augmented reality (AR) in education and training settings; Zekeriya Goktas reports on a research study of attitudes of physical education and sport students towards information and communication technologies; and Vicki Donne presents research conducted on using wikis to support online collaboration among university students.
