Editor's Notes

By Abbie Brown
East Carolina University

Welcome to the September/October issue of TechTrends! This issue is filled with wonderful reports and ideas to get your fall off to a thought-provoking start. Jennifer Richardson, Wanda Fox, and James Lehman report on the successful use of videoconferencing tools in teacher education programs; Jamaal Young, Jemimah Young and Ziad Shaker delve deeply into the TPACK literature; Dustin Annan-Coultas reports on the use of laptops for instructional purposes; Anthony Betrus provides an update on instructional technology in teacher education programs; and Florence Martin, Raymond Pastore and Jean Snider report on developing mobile-based instruction.

Also in this issue, along with our regular (and regularly terrific!) columns and departments we have a new item from Punya Mishra: Rethinking Technology & Creativity in the 21st Century.

Now, where are my Google Glasses? I'm looking forward to reading this issue while taking my morning walk.

Best wishes for augmenting your reality in the nicest possible way.
