Due to a transposition error in the above article the raw numbers for the suicide rate in Ireland were inadvertently graphed against the rate per 100,000 in the United Kingdom. Therefore the tables and graphs shown are incorrect and the Irish trend has been replotted (Fig. 1). As can be seen from the amended figure, the greatest proportion of the rise occurred between 1975 and 2005 and declines thereafter but the further trend is not yet apparent. Perhaps the increase has peaked and the UK and Irish trends will continue to converge. The authors acknowledge and regret the error and have sought to identify it and correct it at the first opportunity.
