The editors of Neurocritical Care acknowledge and appreciate the commitment of our editorial board members, and in particular the ad-hoc reviewers. Reviewers who scrutinized more than five papers in 2016 for possible suitability in the journal are marked with an asterisk. We thank them for the substantial amount of time devoted to the review process.

The Journal is always in need of enthusiastic reviewers. We continue to call for new reviewers and welcome any healthcare provider experienced with the care of patients with a neurocritical illness, but neuroscientists interested in review of the basic sciences are needed also. Our reviewer pool needs refreshing from time to time. Reviewers are asked to be constructive, succinct and available. We look for a practitioner in a neurosciences ICU who has published in the journal or submitted to the journal and can provide a decision rationale to the author and editor and is willing to write an informed and critical editorial (when appropriate). I suspect there are many practitioners and academicians who easily fulfill these criteria and who are not yet listed in our reviewers pool. They should send an email to Wijde@mayo.edu and cc'd to Divya.Nagarajan@springer.com to be entered in the editorial manager. We would appreciate it.
