Dear Reader,

On July the 2nd 1920, in Rome, Italian pioneers from academia, industry, and army, funded the Italian Association of Aeronautics and later Astronautics. This year we do celebrate our centennial.

One century is the right time interval to make a point on the progress made, the current status, and the future perspective of Aeronautics and Astronautics worldwide. The A.I.D.A.A. members are strongly motivated to contribute to that by organizing events in this year with different sizes, formats, and locations to celebrate the centennial.

Aerotecnica M&S is the favourite means for this discussion and we will use the next issues to make it. In the meantime I wish the A.I.D.A.A. members a wonderful and fruitful centennial and I'm confident the readers of Aerotecnica as well as the worldwide passionate of Aeronautics and Astronautics will be close to us by taking part in our events.

Prof. Erasmo Carrera,
A.I.D.A.A. President.
