Erratum to: Reading Across Worlds

James Procter and Bethan Benwell

© James Procter and Bethan Benwell, 2015

J. Procter et al., Reading Across Worlds, New Directions in Book History,
DOI 10.1057/9781137276407

DOI 10.1057/9781137276407_7

The original version of the Acknowledgements has been corrected. The second paragraph should read:

“We are indebted to the AHRC who funded the research behind Reading Across Worlds, and to Kim Knott, as director of the ‘Diasporas, Migration and Identities’, for her faith in and ongoing support of the project. The research was also funded by the Spanish Ministry of Economy and Competitiveness as part of a wider international project, ‘Globalized Cultural Markets: the Production, Circulation and Reception of Difference (Reference FFI2010-17282).’ Our thanks and gratitude to the project leader, Dr. Belén Martín-Lucas, and the project team for their support and feedback along the way. At an earlier stage Corinne Fowler, Beth Guest and Angela Smith helped us to crystallise some of the key ideas behind ‘Devolving Diasporas’: a broader investigation into forms of reception which culminates in this book. In the final stages of the book, Stirling University’s Division of Literature and Languages generously funded editing and proofing support.”

The updated online version of the original book can be found at <http://dx.doi.org/10.1057/9781137276407>.

© James Procter and Bethan Benwell, 2017

J. Procter et al., Reading Across Worlds, New Directions in Book History,
DOI 10.1057/9781137276407_7