Notes on Contributors

Acta Politica (2004) 39, 330. doi:10.1057/palgrave.ap.5500071

Tatu Vanhanen is a Professor Emeritus of Political Science at the University of Tampere and a Docent Emeritus of Political Science at the University of Helsinki. His latest book is Democratization: A Comparative Analysis of 170 Countries (2003).

Oda van Cranenburgh is an Associate Professor of Political Science at the Department of Political Science, University of Leiden, the Netherlands.

Petr Kopecký is a Research Fellow of the Netherlands Organization for Scientific Research (NOW) and Assistant Professor of Political Science at the Department of Political Science, University of Leiden, the Netherlands.

Dr Hans Keman is a Professor of Comparative Political Science at the Vrije Universiteit Amsterdam. He has published various books and articles on democratization, parties & governments, policy performance and the welfare state.