Explains revisions to workforce jobs, originally intended for release last December, now published with the March LMS First Release

This article explains the revisions made to the workforce jobs (WFJ) series, released on 14 March 2007, in the Labour Market Statistics First Release. It was originally intended to release these revisions in December 2006 but further quality assurance was required. This quality assurance has now been concluded and a Review of Workforce Jobs Benchmarking has been published separately, which includes a comparison of annual growth in jobs as measured by the revised WFJ series and the Labour Force Survey.
