Notes on Contributors

International Politics (2005) 42, 152. doi:10.1057/palgrave.ip.8800099

Michael Artime studies at McKendree College, Lebanon, Illinois.

Brian Frederking is Assistant Professor at McKendree College, Lebanon, Illinois. Recent publications include Resolving Security Dilemmas: A Constructivist Interpretation of the INF Treaty and journal articles in American Political Science Review and International Studies Quarterly.

John Guelke is a doctoral candidate at the University of Manchester, UK.

Steven Hurst is a Senior Lecturer in Politics at the Manchester Metropolitan University, UK. Recent publications include The Foreign Policy of the Bush Administration: In Search of a New World Order, and articles in Diplomacy and Statecraft and Political Studies. Forthcoming work includes Cold War US Foreign Policy (2005).

Max Sanchez Pagano studies at McKendree College, Lebanon, Illinois.

Eric Patterson is Assistant Professor at Vanguard University in Costa Mesa, California. His publications include The Christian Realists: Reassessing the Contributions of Niebuhr and his Contemporaries (ed.) and Latin America's Neo-Reformation: Religion and Politics.

Justin Rosenberg is reader in International Relations/Politics at the University of Sussex, UK. His publications include: The Follies of Globalisation Theory: Polemical Essays, and The Empire of Civil Society: A Critique of the Realist Theory of International Relations.