

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Sir,

It is the wish of Council, and I know you intend it as a policy of the Journal, that obituaries published in the Journal should be anonymous. Readers of the obituary for Bill Williams published in the July issue of the Journal will perhaps have noticed my initials at the foot of it. My initials were printed, I understand, by mistake. Their being printed was unfortunate not only because it breached the policy of anonymity, but because I was not in fact the author, merely the commissioner of others. The actual authors and I all hope that any future reference there might be to the obituary should designate anonymous authorship.

Yours faithfully,

G. H. MITCHELL
