Dear readers!

DOI: 10.1134/S2075108720010095

Starting with this issue, the Gyroscopy and Navigation journal enters its second decennium. Certain experience has been accumulated; interests of the audience have become clear.

The analysis of readers' preferences showed that the articles containing the results of advanced research and specific projects, as well as the reviews of activity progress in gyroscopy and navigation actual problems are of the greatest interest. The articles concerning the Earth gravity studies for navigation are also popular.

The editorial board will continue developing these aspects, keeping a close watch on the audience preferences, and promptly follow them up.

The Gyroscopy and Navigation journal is based on a Russian-language journal with the similar name, which, however, publishes not only Russian authors. By now, articles by the authors from 31 countries have been published, and we will continue this tradition.

Our joint efforts will make the journal even more informative and popular.

Chief editor V. G. Peshekhonov