ASO VISUAL ABSTRACT

ASO Visual Abstract: Predicting Colon Cancer-Specific Survival for the Asian Population Using National Cancer Registry Data from Taiwan

Han-Ching Chan, MS¹, Chi-Cheng Huang, MD, PhD^{2,3}, Ching-Chieh Huang, MS¹, Amrita Chattopadhyay, PhD¹, Kuan-Hung Yeh, BS², Wen-Chung Lee, MD, PhD^{1,4}, Chun-Ju Chiang, PhD^{1,4}, Hsin-Ying Lee, MS¹, Skye Hung-Chun Cheng, MD⁵, and Tzu-Pin Lu, PhD¹

¹Department of Public Health, Institute of Epidemiology and Preventive Medicine, College of Public Health, National Taiwan University, Taipei, Taiwan; ²Department of Public Health, College of Public Health, National Taiwan University, Taipei, Taiwan; ³Division of General Surgery, Department of Surgery, Taipei Veterans General Hospital, Taipei, Taiwan; ⁴Taiwan Cancer Registry, Taipei, Taiwan; ⁵Department of Radiation Oncology, Koo Foundation Sun Yat-Sen Cancer Center, Taipei, Taiwan

This study proposes a prediction model that provides an accurate estimation of prognosis for colon cancer patients and accurately predicts colon cancer-specific survival, regardless of patient ethnicity (<https://doi.org/10.1245/s10434-021-10646-2>). The model can assist treatment decisions for patients from diverse ethnic backgrounds.