

ASO VISUAL ABSTRACT

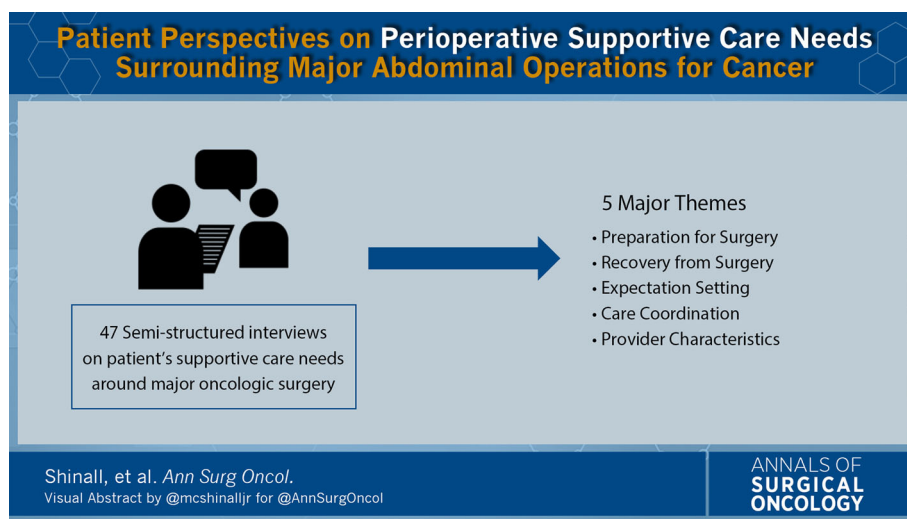

ASO Visual Abstract: Patient Perspectives on Perioperative Supportive Care Needs Surrounding Major Abdominal Operations for Cancer

Myrick C. Shinall Jr., MD, PhD^{1,2,3,4} , E. Wesley Ely, MD, MPH^{3,5,6}, Carolyn Diehl⁷, and Laura M. Beskow, PhD, MPH⁴

¹Department of Surgery, Vanderbilt University Medical Center, Nashville, TN; ²Section of Palliative Care, Vanderbilt University Medical Center, Nashville, TN; ³Critical Illness, Brain Dysfunction, and Survivorship Center, Vanderbilt University Medical Center, Nashville, TN; ⁴Center for Biomedical Ethics and Society, Vanderbilt University Medical Center, Nashville, TN; ⁵Division of Allergy, Pulmonology, and Critical Care, Vanderbilt University Medical Center, Nashville, TN; ⁶Tennessee Valley Geriatrics Research Education and Clinical Center (GRECC), Nashville Veterans Affairs Medical Center, Nashville, TN; ⁷Department of Biomedical Informatics, Vanderbilt University Medical Center, Nashville, TN

Brief Summary: We have limited data on patient perspectives of their supportive care needs perioperatively. This qualitative analysis of patient interviews after major abdominal cancer resections explores the recurring themes about supportive care needs (<https://doi.org/10.1245/s10434-022-12895-1>).

FUNDING Dr. Shinall was supported by the National Cancer Institute (K12CA090625) and the National Institute on Aging (R03AG060085, K76AG068436).

Publisher's Note Springer Nature remains neutral with regard to jurisdictional claims in published maps and institutional affiliations.

© Society of Surgical Oncology 2022

Published Online: 30 December 2022

M. C. Shinall Jr., MD, PhD
e-mail: Ricky.shinall@vumc.org