EDITORIAL

This issue of Behavior Research Methods & Instrumentation inaugurates a new section: book reviews. Several behavioral science journals carry book reviews, but none concentrate on research methods and instrumentation. The new section of Behavior Research Methods & Instrumentation will fill this void.

The BRMI Book Review Section will be issued twice a year, each issue with a number of reviews. Reviewers will be invited to prepare reviews; unsolicited reviews cannot be accepted. Suggestions from readers are solicited. Readers are encouraged to write the book review editor (Daniel E. Bailey, Editor, BRMI Book Review Section, Computer Center, University of Arizona, Tucson, Arizona 85721) with suggestions of books that appear to be appropriate, volunteering to write reviews or nominating persons who might be appropriate to provide reviews.

This edition of the Journal contains a form that can be used to volunteer for occasional reviewing assignments. If you are interested in being asked to provide reviews, please fill in the top portion of this form and mail it to the address indicated. A brief description of your qualifications as well as your interests would be helpful. The same form can be used to nominate other individuals as potential reviewers. Readers of Behavior Research Methods & Instrumentation are urged to nominate as many individuals for this function as they can, within limits that will maintain a high-quality list of potential reviewers. Multiple nominations will be noted as indicating especially appropriate credentials.

Preparation of book review manuscripts should follow the general form of the reviews published in this issue of the Journal. Except for the form and the restrictions noted above, book reviews will be processed in the same manner as other manuscripts.
