

Paul Gold To Continue as Psychobiology Editor

The Publications Committee of the Psychonomic Society is pleased to announce that Paul Gold, the current editor of Psychobiology, has agreed to extend his term by at least 1 year (through 1995). This will give him more time to implement some of the changes in the journal that grew out of the recent review and analysis of Psychobiology. That review affirmed the importance of the journal to the Society (and to the field in general) and endorsed a variety of changes suggested by members of the Society and by Dr. Gold.
