

LIST OF CONTRIBUTORS

Penelope Ann Adair received her Ph.D. from the University of California at Santa Barbara in 1993. She is currently Associate Professor of History at the University of Texas-Pan American.

Tracy Chapman Hamilton, Assistant Professor in the Department of Art History at Sweet Briar College, received her graduate degrees from the University of Texas at Austin. She studies Late Capetian royal female patronage and is currently working on the individual and cooperative commissions of Marie de Brabant, Mahaut d'Artois, Jeanne de Navarre et Champagne, and Jeanne de Bourgogne. She contributed entries to Medieval Germany: An Encyclopedia (New York: Garland, 2001).

Aline Hornaday is a Visiting Scholar in the History Department at the University of California, where she received her doctorate in 1984. She has published articles and edited books and is currently working on a book entitled "The Mauberge Saints: Their Spiritual Reciprocity with the Secular World of Medieval Hainaut."

Lois L. Huneycutt is Associate Professor of History at the University of Missouri, Columbia, and the author of numerous articles on medieval queenship, most recently in Eleanor of Aquitaine, Lord and Lady (New York: Palgrave Macmillan 2002). Her book, Matilda of Scotland: A Study in Medieval Queenship, will be published in 2003 by Boydell and Brewer.

William Chester Jordan is Professor of History and Director of the Program in Medieval Studies at Princeton University. He has worked extensively on a variety of topics—the reign of Louis IX, serfdom and manumission, women's credit networks, Jewish-Christian relations, and famine. His most recent book is Europe in the High Middle Ages (The Penguin History of Europe) (London: Allen Lane, 2001).

Kimberly A. LoPrete (Ph.D., Chicago) lectures in medieval history at the National University of Ireland, Galway. Her publications on Adela of Blois, culminating in Adela of Blois, Countess and Lord (ca. 1067–1137)

(Dublin: Four Courts Press, forthcoming), show how the study of aristocratic women transforms received sociopolitical narratives.

Afrodesia E. McCannon received her Ph.D. from the University of California, Berkeley, where she wrote her dissertation on the Vie de saint Louis. She was recently awarded a Fulbright to Tunisia (where Saint Louis died) to continue her studies of the canonized king's legacy. An Assistant Professor at Rowan University, she teaches British and World Literature. Currently, she is researching French, English, and German medieval memoirs.

Anneke B. Mulder-Bakker is Senior Lecturer in Medieval History and Medieval Studies at the University of Groningen. Her publications on historiography, hagiography, and gender include Sanctity and Motherhood (New York: Garland, 1995), The Invention of Saintliness (London, New York: Routledge, 2002), and she is presently preparing a book on "Anchoresses in Medieval Europe."

Kathleen Nolan is Associate Professor of Art History at Hollins University. She has published on narrative in public sculpture in the Art Bulletin, Gazette des Beaux-Arts, and Studies in Iconography, and on queens' tombs in Memory and the Medieval Tomb (Aldershot, GB, Brookfield, VT: Ashgate, 2000) and Eleanor of Aquitaine, Lord and Lady (New York: Palgrave Macmillan 2002).

Kathleen S. Schowalter received her M.A. in Art History from the University of Texas at Austin, where she wrote her thesis on the Ingeborg Psalter. Her current doctoral research at Johns Hopkins University continues her interest in Capetian queens' books.

Miriam Shadis, who received her Ph.D. from Duke University in history, lives in Athens, Ohio, where she works parttime at Ohio University. She is the author of Political Women in the High Middle Ages: Berenguela of Castile and Her Family (New York: Palgrave Macmillan 2002) and a number of essays and reviews.

Anne Rudloff Stanton, who teaches in the Department of Art History and Archaeology at the University of Missouri-Columbia, studies Gothic illuminated manuscripts and the people who used them. Her most recent publications include "The Psalter of Isabelle of France, Queen of England: Isabelle as the Audience," Word and Image 18 (2002), and The Queen Mary Psalter: A Study of Affect and Audience (Philadelphia, PA: American Philosophical Society, 2002).
