

APPENDIX

While Kingdon (1995) studied two policy areas (health and transportation) in the same political system (USA, federal level), I focused my research on the same policy area (gun control) across two very different political systems (Brazil and Uruguay). Nonetheless, the research followed his steps regarding the use of qualitative explanatory sources. In consequence, case studies were developed using in-situ and in-depth interviews with protagonists of the policy processes, as well as legislative documents, academic literature, media reports and public opinion surveys.

The interviews regarding the Brazilian Disarmament Statute were conducted throughout October and November of 2016 in São Paulo, Brasilia and Rio de Janeiro (Brazil). The interviews regarding the Uruguayan Responsible Firearm Ownership Law were conducted in Montevideo (Uruguay) in September of 2012 and September of 2016 (Table A.1).
